Hello!Can someone help me with a question.I bought a laptop for 3,5 years and I wanted to install windows 7 and replace the current one. It has a 64-bit version and I also found the 64-bit version of windows 7.The problem is I want to use the 32-bit version because I have a 2 GB RAM, and I want to make use of all of it.I downloaded the Windows 7 Installation disk and installed it but the problem is that it takes so long to boot from this disk that it gives me an error. It says "No OS detected". Is there a way that I can fix this?Thanks in advance I have a windows 7 installation disc that is working fine.When I try to boot the disc it says "No operating system detected". Is there any way that I can resolve this problem?Thanks in advance Hello,I was wondering if there was a way to create a new user on your laptop, and then use the new user to log into your hard drive.Basically, I have an older version of Windows 7 (home premium) that has a virus. I have a windows 7 disc that I want to use to repair my computer, but I am not allowed to use the computer. I tried using the Windows 7 repair disc to update the virus and it did not work 77a5ca646e
