The clinical characteristics of 15 patients with invasive thymoma are discussed. Both adults and children presented with chest pain, dyspnea, cough and/or superior vena cava syndrome. Two-thirds presented with tumor extending to adjacent mediastinal structures, while the remaining third presented with tumor extending to the pericardium. Histologically, five cases were thymomatous, five mixed, two B1, and three mixed B1 and B2. Of the seven thymomatous tumors, four were pure thymoma B1 and three were mixed thymoma B1 and B2. The nine nonthymomatous tumors included six epithelial, two lymphoepithelioma-like and one lymphoma. The age range was 21 to 66 years. The longest and shortest survival periods were eight and two years, respectively. The two cases of epithelial thymoma presented with paraneoplastic syndrome. Of the two cases of pure thymoma B1, one died of multi-organ metastasis two years after surgery and the other died of unknown cause one year after resection. The longest survival period was 14 years for a patient with mixed thymoma B1 and B2. In conclusion, immunologic histogenesis of thymoma is a necessary key to classification, and invasive thymoma appears to be an aggressive neoplasm with high rates of metastasis and high potential for malignant progression.Q: proj4 find limits of projection I'm trying to find the limits of a project defined by the following equation: proj4string: +proj=utm +lon_0=-100 +lat_0=
